About

I spent my early career inside the rooms where organizations discover, in real time, what they failed to protect. Incident rooms and board briefings taught me something no slide deck covers: systems and people fail the same way, quietly, long before they go wrong.

Today my work moves across three rooms: the boardroom, where I advise on security strategy and organizational resilience; the stage, where I speak on leadership and transformation; and the page, where I write, including my book, I Am Not A Painter.

Signature speaking topics

Leadership Under Pressure

What it takes to lead well when the stakes are real and the room is watching for cracks.

AI, Trust & the New Perimeter

A grounded look at how AI is reshaping risk and trust, without the hype or the panic.

Systems Thinking for Executives

Simplifying complexity without losing what matters, for decisions under real pressure.

Audience

Executive teams, boards, and conferences in financial services, technology, and logistics. Equally at home in a 40-person boardroom or a 4,000-seat general session.

Format

Keynotes, executive offsites, board briefings, and internal leadership events. Standard AV setup (lavalier or handheld mic, projector and screen, confidence monitor if available).

Cybersecurity & Organizational Resilience

Why secure systems and secure culture fail the same way, and what boards need to ask first.

Rebuilding What Matters

A framework for identity and transformation, drawn from my own rebuilding.

Authenticity as a Leadership Advantage

Why the leaders people follow furthest rarely perform the hardest.
